Ernakulam Students Initiative: Students Initiative in Palliative Care

Students' initiatives in palliative care demonstrate their commitment to improving the lives of patients and families facing serious illnesses, while also gaining valuable hands-on experience, developing leadership skills, and contributing to the advancement of palliative care practices. These initiatives play a crucial role in fostering compassionate healthcare practices and preparing future healthcare professionals to deliver holistic care in challenging situations. Students in palliative care settings are essential for both their own educational development and for contributing to compassionate care.

Their exposure to palliative care during training shapes their understanding and approach to managing patients with complex, often terminal conditions. Students bring new ideas and perspectives to palliative care teams. Their presence encourages innovation and improvement in care delivery, as they may question existing practices, propose new interventions, or suggest alternative approaches based on the latest research and evolving healthcare trends.

ACTIVITIES

Advanced training in Palliative Nursing

Arike Palliative Home Care conducted a 2-day workshop on June 10 and 11. The programmes aim to prepare healthcare providers to deliver high-quality, compassionate care to patients with serious illnesses and their families, focusing on improving quality of life and ensuring dignity throughout the care journey. St. Andrews Hospice UK, nurses deputed from NHM, DMO, and other NGOs—Jeremiah, CanCare, Pavana, and Rajagiri—participated in the programme.

Awareness Sessions on Palliative Care & Ernakulam Students Initiative

On June 11th, an awareness class was conducted by the Ernakulam Students Initiative in palliative care students at Rajagiri College Kalamassery, focusing on ways to support palliative patients. During the session, students were encouraged to initiate various initiatives aimed at providing assistance to individuals receiving palliative care. Discussions revolved around brainstorming different avenues through which students could contribute, including emotional support, companionship, fundraising, and raising awareness in the community.

Arike Monthly Review Meeting

On June 15th, Koode volunteers gathered for a review meeting at Arike. At this gathering, volunteers had the chance to reflect on their experiences, share insights, and discuss strategies to enhance their support for individuals requiring palliative care in the community. The meeting facilitated the exchange of ideas among volunteers, allowing them to address challenges and collaborate on initiatives to improve the care provided to patients and their families. Furthermore, it offered our new volunteers the valuable opportunity to receive guidance and feedback from seasoned and experienced volunteers, fostering an environment of ongoing learning and growth within the palliative care community.

Volunteers' Course in Palliative Care (VCPC)

On June 22, Arike Palliative Care welcomed the Fifth batch of participants to its Volunteers' Course in Palliative Care (VCPC). This ongoing programme aims to provide community members with the essential skills and knowledge necessary to support individuals in need of palliative care.

Throughout the course, participants received comprehensive training, which included theoretical sessions as well as practical experiences such as home visits. This approach allows volunteers to gain a deep understanding of palliative care needs and develop hands-on skills to address the diverse needs of patients and their families.

Wedding Anniversary celebration

Ernakulam students Initiative in palliative care and Arike team gathered and celebrated the wedding anniversary of PX and SP. Over the past years, they have built a life filled with love, laughter, and cherished memories. Their commitment to each other is truly remarkable and serves as an inspiration to all. They also expressed their gratitude towards Arike for this memorable day.

Birthday celebration

"Birthdays are nature's way of telling us to eat more cake!" Arike palliative care members and Ernakulam Students Initiative in palliative care members celebrated one of patient Y's Birthday at their home. Birthdays can evoke a complex mix of emotions, but they often provide an opportunity for introspection, celebration, and connection with others.
