Sharing Joy Beyond Treatment

For many of our patients, festivals pass quietly, often marked by illness, financial stress, and isolation. During Christmas, when families and communities come together, such moments of separation are felt even more deeply by those confined to their homes due to chronic illness.

This year, Arike is shifting its focus towards a Community-Managed Palliative Care model, strengthening the role of society, volunteers, and local leadership in supporting people living with chronic illness and age-related challenges. This approach aims to move care beyond institutions, enabling communities to actively participate in compassion, responsibility, and shared care.

In this spirit, a special Christmas visit was organised for patients in the Kadavanthra Zone. Under the leadership of the Zone Lead Nurse, Ms. Sharanya, and with the support of team leaders Ms. Taxy, Ms. Viji, and Mr. Babu, cakes were distributed to patients as a symbol of care, celebration, and inclusion.

The programme was carried out along with our dedicated volunteers, whose presence reflected the essence of community-led care. Through simple interactions, shared moments, and festive gestures, patients and families experienced not only celebration, but also reassurance that they are supported by a caring community.

Beyond clinical interventions, such initiatives highlight the importance of psycho-social support in palliative care. Through thoughtful, zone-specific activities, our Zone Lead Nurses continue to translate the Community-Managed model into meaningful action, ensuring care that addresses emotional, social, and human needs alongside medical support.

We extend our heartfelt appreciation to the nursing team, leaders, and volunteers who made this initiative meaningful. We wish all zones continued success in offering compassionate care that fosters community participation while upholding dignity and comfort for those we serve.

Volunteer Diaries

I'm happy for the volunteering opportunity at Arike. It was just a short engagement and lasted only 4 hours. But indeed, it had a profound influence in my life. My perspective about life has significantly changed after visiting the bed-ridden patients at their homes. What I appreciate about Arike is the way the team respects every person they meet. Watching the nurses and social workers work so patiently has changed the way I look at care. I feel grateful that I was able to be a part of this work, even in a small way. I would like to continue my support for Arike. Thank you"- Mr. Suresh, Volunteer

Managing Medicines Safely at Home

Many patients take several medicines a day, and simple routines can prevent mistakes. Keeping all medicines in one clean place and using a clear timing chart helps caregivers stay organised. Always check expiry dates and avoid mixing old and new medicines. If the patient shows unusual sleepiness, confusion, stomach issues, or any new discomfort, inform the home-care team. Medicines should be given exactly as prescribed. These small, careful steps ensure safer medication use and better comfort for the patient.
