Welcome to the Arike Palliative Home Care Bulletin!

Within these pages, we share the stories and highlights of our work, emphasizing the difference it makes in the community. Your continued support helps us move forward and reach more people in need. Thank you for being with us on this journey.

Why I Choose to Contribute

One of our regular monthly contributors recently shared the reason behind his continued support for Arike.

His elderly mother developed severe constipation, abdominal discomfort and bloating. Concerned about her condition, the family took her to hospital. After several days of investigations and treatment, she was discharged with a very high hospital bill. As a family that depended on daily wage work, the financial burden was overwhelming.

When the same symptoms returned a few days later, an ASHA worker suggested that they can contact Arike. Our home care team visited the patient, assessed her condition, and managed her chronic constipation with enema at home. She experienced significant relief and recovered comfortably without another hospital admission. Reflecting on the experience, he said: "Until I contacted Arike, I never knew this could be managed at home. We thought going to the hospital was our only option."

Although the service was provided free of cost, the family insisted on making a donation of ₹500. Since then, they have continued to contribute ₹500 every month. When asked why he continues to contribute, he said: "I am a daily wage worker. I know it costs money for your team to reach families like ours. Today it was my mother. Tomorrow it could be my father or another member of my family. If I want this service to be there whenever we need it, I also have a responsibility to help sustain it. This ₹500 is my small contribution to keeping Arike available for everyone."

His words echo the sentiments of many of our regular contributors. Some give out of gratitude for the care their loved ones received, while others contribute because they believe compassionate home-based palliative care should always be available to every family. Every contribution, no matter the amount, helps ensure that Arike can continue bringing quality care, comfort, and dignity to patients in their own homes.

Volunteer Diaries

My journey into palliative care began while caring for my mother-in-law during her prolonged illness. That experience taught me that compassionate care is not only about meeting physical needs but also about being present, listening, and offering comfort during life's most difficult moments.

Since then, I have been spending time with elderly people and patients in my community who often have no one to talk to or care for them. Whether it is helping with personal care, providing essential items like food and diapers, or simply sitting beside them and listening to their stories, I have learned that even small acts of kindness can make a meaningful difference.

Although I run a beauty parlour and a small provision store, I always remind myself that time is not something we find—it is something we make. Every patient I meet teaches me valuable lessons about empathy, dignity, and humanity. These experiences continue to inspire me and strengthen my commitment to serving people through palliative care.

Care Info

Keeping the Patient's Environment Pest-Free

A clean environment helps prevent infections and improves the patient's comfort.

- Keep the patient's bed slightly away from walls to reduce the entry of ants and insects.
- Clean food spills, waste, and used dressings promptly.
- Avoid leaving uncovered food or sugary drinks near the patient's bed.
- Keep the room clean, dry, and well-ventilated.
- Check regularly for ants, flies, mosquitoes, or other pests, especially if the patient has wounds or medical devices.
- Use safe pest-control measures whenever necessary, while avoiding strong sprays or chemicals near the patient.
- Inform the care team if pests become difficult to control or if you notice any signs of wound contamination or infection.
